Music Helps Children Learn Foreign Languages. The combination of a foreign language with music makes learning more diverse and interesting. Music helps to remember new words and syntactic forms. There are common elements in teaching music and foreign languages: reading, memorizing, listening, and an emotional component. These two processes can be combined to balance the rational and emotional sides of human experience and thinking. Simona Rodano brings her 20 years experience working with teachers and students through original edu-musicals and in-school performances. She will present the upcoming production of "SETTE MONDI" along with other great initiatives for schools.

Expose your students to an unforgettable and entertaining way to learn the Italian language and culture. Bring them to watch Edu-Musical in Italian and English, let them participate in a Tarantella workshop and much more...let's all have fun!

FAQ: I'd love to do that but my school district won't pay for that...How can I do?

We will go over several ways to get funds and help you and your students! Insieme!
